Shopping center sale shrouded in mystery

By RICH ADAMS

A current move to liquidate the Waveland Shopping Center, Inc. corporation and a reported sale of the complex to a new limited partnership called Our Shopping Center, Ltd. is shrouded in mystery as former stockholders and officers of the defunct corporation refuse comment on the transactions.

Liquidation of the corporation was made public in a legal notice entitled "Statement of Intent to Dissolve Waveland Shopping Center, Inc. by Written Consent of Shareholders," a document signed by officers of the corporation, all residents of Colorado.

According to Delmar Wilcox of Waveland, reportedly a former stockholder of the original corporation who said he is now manager of the shopping center on US-90 in Waveland, the original corporation was sold to a second corporation which then transferred ownership to a third corporation, the Our Shopping Center, Ltd. limited partnership.

Wilcox refused to name who the principal stockholders of the new corporation are, and also refused comment as to which corporation the shopping center was sold prior to becoming property of Our Shopping Center, Ltd.

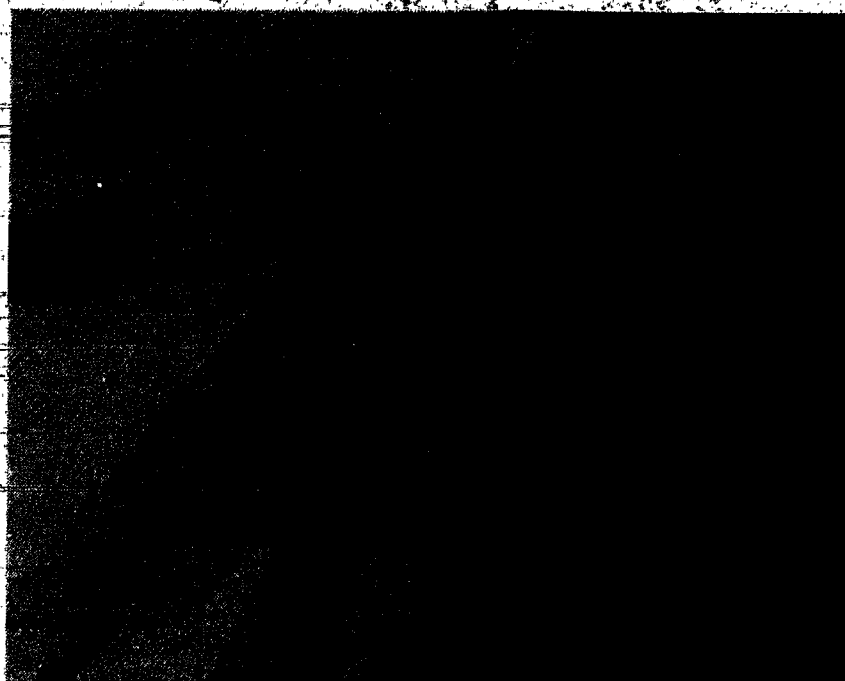

Wilcox contends facts surrounding the sale are "privileged information" and would not comment further.

He did concede, however, that he is the new manager of the Waveland complex.

The statement, signed by the original corporation president, Donald J. Eagan of Englewood, Colorado, is dated September 17.

Other officers of the liquidated corporation are Ruth L. Young and Bonita L. Boex, both of whose addresses is listed as 600 S. Cherry Street, Suite 1002, Denver, Colorado.

BEACH ROAD DAMAGE EXTENDS TO BEACH Damage to Hancock County beach road in Waveland has now extended to Beach Boulevard near Ramonada Street and the E.M. Brignac residence. The county has been trying since April to acquire federal funds to repair the road, but has been unsuccessful so far. A four-member county delegation is planning a trip to Washington D.C. to seek Senator John Stennis' help on the problem. (Staff photo by Ella Chevas)

Stennis' help sought with beach boulevard

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Four county, municipal and business leaders from Hancock County plan to meet Wednesday with Senator John C. Stennis in Washington to press the county's efforts to secure federal aid on repairing beach road here.

"The county does not have enough money to repair the beach road and it seems the only way we can repair it now is with the Senator's help," Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett lamented.

Members of the local delegation to Washington will include Bennett, Hancock County Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce President Dick Thomas, and engineer Donn Murray.

Engineering denied the application on the basis that damage to the beach road was not related to the approved federal disaster which was the flooding caused by the Mississippi River and Pearl River that started up in North Mississippi and worked its way down.

"According to the application that was submitted," Ciletti explained, "the request stated the deterioration of the road began with Hurricane Camille in 1969, progressively deteriorating the artery with following storms."

"The one-page application," Ciletti said "showed a 10 year period of decay was the cause of the beach road problem."

"Therefore," Ciletti continued, "the county's request was not related to the flooding disaster and not available for emergency relief funds."

In addition, the Programs Branch chief said the some 15 miles of Beach Road damage is "a little of an area to fall under emergency relief."

"The beach road problem," reiterated Ciletti, "according to the application was not a disaster that suddenly faces you with a dilemma, it was more of a long term situation."

Hancock County Board of Supervisor's Engineer Larry Seals said Wednesday, "The $100,000 application figure doesn't ring a bell, but the application for funds to repair the beach road was done with input from Donn Murray, Ronnie Murray, members of the board of supervisors and a Federal Highway Administration engineer."

Committee ok's $102 million for Hancock Army Ammo Plant

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

The House Rules Committee has sent to the floor a bill authorizing $102.3 million for the Mississippi Army Ammunition plant located near National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County, Rep. Trent Lott reported Tuesday.

Lott, a member of the rules panel, said the funds are included in the appropriations for the 1980 fiscal year which begins Oct. 1.

The overall bill contains a $129.5

billion for national defense during the fiscal year.

"The $102.3 million earmarked for the plant," Lott explained, "was recommended in the budget and approved by the house appropriations committee."

"This favorable action by the rules committee sends the measure to the floor, and I expect it will be in for a vote on the floor later this week," Lott stated.

The funds will be used for metal parts, production equipment, construction of a grenade-manufacturing facility, and construction of a loading-assembling-packing facility, the congressman reported.

The plant will manufacture 155 mm artillery ammunition for the U.S. Army and North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

"This systematic development of the ammunition plant is a key element in America's overall defense position," Lott proclaimed.

"I am pleased that Mississippians are again playing a crucial role in keeping our country strong," the congressman added.

Bay city crews continue Frederic trash cleanup

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The City of Bay St. Louis is making an all-out effort to remove all debris caused by Hurricane Frederic by Friday of this week, according to Bill Johnson, superintendent of utilities.

Johnson said Monday the City is using all trucks available to cleanup the trash residents have placed on City sidewalks and roadsides.

"We are going to pickup everything that has been placed out, but we will not be able to go over the same areas twice. The City started Monday with four trucks with drivers plus the front-end loader and we are hoping to have covered the City completely by Friday," Johnson commented.

"After we finish this special cleanup of Frederic's trash, going over the entire city once, residents who have not cleaned up their yards yet will then have to adhere to the city ordinance on trash," Johnson added.

The ordinance required trash and debris to be placed in containers, packaged or bundled in certain sizes, etc. When asked how much the City of icked up in tonnage of debris Johnson reported he didn't really have any specific way of telling.

The superintendent did comment, "Some stops filled up several truckloads, and on some streets everyone had a pile of trash."

During the night of Hurricane Frederic, Bay St. Louis had the entire city force outworking all night keeping vital streets open to traffic.

Bay St. Louis no longer collects garbage or trash with its own crews, as the job is now contracted by Gulf Coast Waste.

Johnson reported he was using personal from the utility, street and parks divisions for the special one-time trash pickup.

Federal UW campaigns on at NSTL

The resident agencies and companies at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County have set a goal of $85,000 for the 1980 Combined Agencies Campaign (CAC) for the United Way.

Kickoff activities for the annual drive will be Friday and the campaign will continue through Oct. 21.

The CAC is the only charity campaign conducted at the installation. Each agency and company sets its own goal based on number of employees and past years' performance.

Recipients of funds collected at NSTL include United Way organizations in Hancock, Harrison, Jackson and Pearl River counties in Mississippi; the Greater New Orleans Area, including St. Tammany Parish, in Louisiana; and Mobile, Alabama.

The National Health and International Service agencies also receive funds. Contributions go to agencies and areas designated by each contributor.

NSTL Manager Jerry Hines is the overall campaign chairman and Mark Bayne is drive chairman. Other committee members are A.W. Hines, account manager, two unit unit, Drury, Bink, vice chairman of the drive, and several other NSTL employees.

Long Beach man drowns

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

T. J. Davis, 57, of Long Beach drowned Saturday, Sept. 22, 1979, after he and Wilson Radon of Pass Christian abandoned a capsized skiff to swim for shore.

The U.S. Coast Guard discovered Davis' body at 7:15 a.m. Sunday approximately 1 1/2 miles off the Long Beach shore, Harrison County Coroner Bill Little said.

Little said the two men were on a boat when it was overturned in the Mississippi Sound when their boat capsized. They clung to the boat. A couple of boats went by but they didn't see them and the boat didn't explain.

Both men were married and had children. Davis was a resident of Long Beach and Radon was a resident of Pass Christian.

When the Coast Guard found Davis' body, he was in the water, 10 miles off shore. The boat was not seen and the two men were not seen until they were found.

Report identifies state health needs

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

"Heart disease, cancer, stroke, accidents and infant mortality are the five leading causes of death in Mississippi," according to a recently issued report by the Mississippi State Medical Association's Committee on Health Needs.

The report further outlines the five causes of hospitalization in the state, and suggests a solution to improving health.

The five leading causes of hospitalization in Mississippi are childhood, heart disease, respiratory diseases, digestive difficulties and injuries due to accidents.

According to the report, the infant mortality rate is among the highest in the country.

Hancock General Hospital Administrator Harry Gilmore describes the report recently released by that committee as "a good one."

Some 25 percent of infants are born to unwed mothers, and between 1965-1975 birth rates among unwed teenagers increased by more than 30 percent.

"There is a growing belief that any future advances made in improving the nation's health will not result from spectacular biomedical breakthroughs. Rather, advances will result from personally initiated actions that are directly influenced by an individual's health-related attitudes, values, beliefs and knowledge," the report states.

Another problem caused by the individual, Gilmore says, is that an ill person will visit a hospital instead of a doctor's office when he is not seriously ill.

Approximately 2.2 million people, most of whom live in non-urban areas comprise the state's population.

In 1975 there were only six cities with more than 30,000 population and only ten counties with more than 50,000 population.

County jobless rate remains at 6.2 percent

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Hancock County's August unemployment rate, for the second month in a row, remained at 6.2 percent, the Mississippi State Employment Service reports.

Although the August unemployment rate remained identical to the previous month, the number of unemployed persons increased from 201 in August to 204 in September.

The unemployment rate for August was 6.2 percent, based on a total population of 3,240 persons.

When the County Commission met last week, it was reported that the unemployment rate for August was 6.2 percent, based on a total population of 3,240 persons.

Childhood eye disorders effect thousands yearly

No child is too young for a vision problem. One in 20 preschoolers has an eye disorder, or about 6,200 of the 123,000 children aged three, four, and five in this state.

"Some of these problems can easily be overlooked," said Miss Eudora Welty, Sight Saving Chairman of the Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness, an affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness.

"The child probably won't complain because he, or she, doesn't realize there's anything amiss. After all, he's always seen his world the same way," she explained.

Miss Welty stressed that it is important to find eye problems early, because by the time the disorder becomes apparent, it may be difficult to correct.

Ideally, children should have a professional eye examination by the age of four or five, or at least a vision screening. The Society sponsors periodic free preschool vision screenings, conducted by a network of trained volunteers.

One of the eye problems of most concern is amblyopia - "lazy eye" - a dimness of vision in the affected eye that, without professional treatment, can lead to permanently impaired vision, or even blindness in that eye, if not discovered and treated by age six or seven. The earlier the treatment, the better the chance for its success.

The usual method of treatment is to patch the stronger eye, to force the weaker one to develop, sometimes in combination with eye exercises, glasses or surgery.

For parents who cannot take their children to a doctor or community vision screening, a do-it-yourself version is now available with the Society's Home Eye Test for Preschoolers.

"Like any other screening," Miss Welty pointed out, "it does not take the place of a professional eye examination, but it can tip off parents to the fact that a problem may exist, so that the child can see an eye doctor for a thorough check-up."

Since its introduction in 1972, nearly seven million pieces of the Home Eye Test have been distributed, dramatically increasing the number of children whose eyes are being tested in the very important early years.

Available in English and Spanish, the test is designed as a simple game for children too young to recognize letters and numbers. The kit is self-contained, with directions for giving the test and interpreting the results, and is available free from the Mississippi Society.

Multi-million dollar park with back door entrance

An April tropical storm, unnamed since it preceded the official hurricane season opening, roared across the Hancock County coastline, severely damaging its beaches and adjacent Highway 606.

That same roadway, vital to the economic life of this community, was damaged further by gale-force winds and storm tides of Hurricane Bob which slammed into the beaches here in July.

Ironically, the winds of Hurricane Frederic, which devastated most of the Mississippi coastline, as well as Alabama and Florida shores creating disaster areas there, came out of the north in Hancock County leaving the beaches and road unscathed.

Last Thursday night, however, a weather system which was an offshoot of Hurricane Henri far out in the Gulf of Mexico, again pushed storm tides over the beach road, further undermining the artery and rendering it impassable in several areas.

Bureaucratic red tape now prevents Hancock County, damaged by three storms, from receiving aid apparently because this area was not severely damaged by a certain other storm under the name of which coastal communities in three states are receiving federal assistance.

Monday's action by Supervisor Bert Courge and Waveland Mayor Johnny Longo in closing the highway was wise, even though it is the main entrance to Buccaneer State Park.

No one really knows just how much of the area under the roadway has been washed out, one can see some very deep holes under the edges in several areas.

Buccaneer is a very fine park, one all of us in Hancock County are very proud to have, yet it isn't very good if visitors cannot find the way to get to it.

Sure, we realize it has a back entrance, but have you tried to tell someone just how to get to it from US-90?

At Buccaneer Park sits a Wave Pool just about ready to open, but there is one hangup, the main entrance is closed down.

It seems to us that since the Wave Pool at Buccaneer is the only one in the State (and there are only a few other operational in the entire nation), efforts should be made to at least have a safe way to get there.

Again, it is true there is a back entrance to the Wave Pool, only all visitors will have to drive all the way through the park, disturbing everyone who is trying to relax and have fun.

How are the campers going to enjoy the facilities at Buccaneer, if they do happen to find the back entrance, if there is a continuous flow of traffic going through the park to visit the Wave Pool?

To us it just doesn't make any sense to have a multi-million dollar project with a nickle entrance.

A big problem with campers using the back entrance is the fact that the registration office is in the front of the park.

It wouldn't be a problem for folks who have used the park before, but during the winter months many campers come from the North and Canada. There will be a tendency for these visitors never to recommend the use of Buccaneer to their friends.

Since the first storm our local officials have been working with our state senator and representative, as well as our federal representatives, trying to secure some aide for the restoration of the road.

Since Beach Boulevard is a state highway, it looks like someone in Jackson could do something along the lines of helping repair the damages.

We just wonder what in the world is the Mississippi State Park Commission doing. Are they concerned with having an entrance to the State Park in Waveland?

If they would start helping, maybe some agency would open an ear, thus preventing our local officials from running up against a solid wall.

We are glad the action was taken to close State Highway 606 and we hope it stays closed until it is properly repaired.

TONS AND TONS OF TRASH. Bay St. Louis City crews are busy this week picking up loads and loads of trash caused by Hurricane Frederic. This photo was taken on Monday, Tuesday in the first block off Beach Boulevard. Bill Johnson, city utility superintendent, said there wasn't really, anyway to tell how much trash the City would move in the one week operation involving four trucks and a front end loader. Waveland has been working over-time in an effort to remove the tons of trees and limbs caused by the storm, according to Mayor Johnny Longo.

Bits 'n pieces

We have observed several merchants in Bay St. Louis still using the five percent sales tax charts. When it comes time to send in their sales tax reports, they undoubtedly will come up on the short end as the rate now is five and one-half percent on most items. Automobile purchases are one of the exceptions.

Nina Garcia called Monday to say the response has been very good in their appeal for items to take to people stricken by Hurricane Frederic.

Mrs. Garcia reported some people have donated and bought canned for them to take. He said that Earl plan on leaving this Sunday early to deliver the items. She is still collecting anything people want to send to the area at her shop, Nina Garcia's Florist, on US-90, Waveland.

The Bay St. Louis Jaycees were another group who went about town collecting items for storm victims. We saw them Saturday afternoon loading up and heading over towards the Mississippi-Alabama line to deliver some clothing and food items.

A spokesman for the Jaycees commented on how the small stores were very generous in giving them items.

An item we would like to mention especially to students, is the fact that our libraries in Bay St. Louis and Waveland and Kiln branch all can be helpful in certain studies.

Whenever a student has an assignment needing research, the Library should be their headquarters, they have just about any book published and if they do not have it in stock it is possible they can acquire a Special one in only a few days.

So, students, remember the Library use it, it is for all of us to use.

Hancock County Sheriff's Department sure has been keeping busy of late recovering items such as building materials.

Last week, just about every time we looked out our front door they seemed to be unloading building materials in the compound behind the jail.

Some folks thought the sheriff was going into the lumber business, but the reportedly stolen materials do belong to someone.

The American Red Cross is spending thousands upon thousands of dollars in the areas hardest hit by Hurricane Frederic.

If we think only ten years ago we will remember several million dollars being spent in Hancock County after Camille.

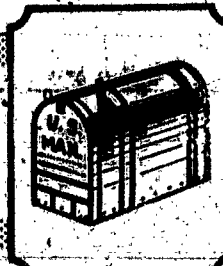

If we had people living as close as Gulfport receiving severe damage from the storm, with many of our neighbors in Biloxi, Pascagoula and Mobile having property completely destroyed.

The Hancock County Chapter of the American Red Cross is now making a special appeal to Hancock County for donations to help defray some of the money being spent on our neighbors.

Those of you able can help by sending a donation to the Hancock County American Red Cross, P.O. Box 140, Bay St. Louis, Miss. 39520.

Historical significance of Bay area unrecognized

Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Bay St. Louis has historical significance that none of the local residents seem willing to claim.

Ocean Springs was the first settlement by the Canadian-French explorers in the Mississippi Valley and BAY ST. LOUIS was second, not Natchitoches as that town claims.

I have presented these facts to the Hancock County Historical Society and previous city administrations and nobody has done anything about it. If the location was in Florida, Bay St. Louis would be a tourist mecca.

To substantiate my claim, simply read the journals of Iberville, Bienville and the Comte De Lisle (Royal cartographer) for a description of how the permanent settlement of a few members of the party was established in Bay St. Louis in 1699.

The History of Hancock County written in the 1930's as a federal government project establishes the location of the early fort as facing the beach just south of Dunbar Ave.

Maybe somebody will grab the ball to give Bay St. Louis its proper place on the historical map.

Sincerely,
R. J. Calbre

Governor tells agenda of 1979 Energy Conference

Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Friend:

On Wednesday and Thursday, October 24 and 25, I will convene the 1979 Governor's Conference on Energy and Economic Development. The conference, the third and concluding one during my term as governor, will be held in Jackson at the Coliseum Ramada Inn.

Reflecting on the past, I am proud to have played a role in the economic achievements of Mississippi in recent years. Looking toward the future, I recognize that all Mississippians must meet the challenges of the next decade with forthrightness and conviction.

The theme for the Conference is: "Reflections on the Past and Challenges of the Eighties - Moving Forward With A Bold and Positive Attitude."

Wednesday will be devoted to coping with the energy situation, as for instance, the concept of Mississippi communities becoming energy self-sufficient.

On Thursday, we will discuss aspects of economic development that will attract more blue chip industries and better-paying jobs to Mississippi. As you can see, this program addresses some vital issues.

We are seeking knowledgeable and dynamic speakers who have been highly successful in their fields, such as W. J. Price, senior vice president of Chevron, U.S.A.; Bob Leak, director of the South Carolina State Development Board; and Herb Wallerstein, vice president of 20th Century Fox Productions.

Highlighting the final day of the Conference will be a luncheon address by a nationally prominent figure.

This Conference should be a most dynamic, successful, and rewarding one for all Mississippians as well as for others across the nation.

Sincerely,
CLIFF FINCH
GOVERNOR

CHAOS IN THE HOUSE

By CONGRESSMAN
TRENT LOTT
5th District,
Mississippi

The mood of the House of Representatives is beginning to reflect the mood of the country, and action on the floor last week was a classic example. It was an amazing display of fiscal conservatism, even though it came amid chaos.

Four major spending bills went down to defeat, one of them twice. When the smoke had cleared, the House had accomplished a savings of billions of dollars.

Even so, the measures will have to come back to the floor because without spending approval on some of them, the federal government would be at a standstill.

One of the reasons for the chaos is the fast-approaching end to fiscal year 1979. When October 1 arrives, the new fiscal year will begin and not many appropriations bills have been approved.

So a number of spending measures were lumped last week in a resolution which, if it had passed, would have allowed programs to continue at the present funding levels or lower until the new appropriations could be approved. But the resolution failed, not once but twice.

Now, I didn't agree with all of the items in the resolution. But it did contain money for such things as defense, agriculture, military construction and synthetic fuels. It also re-affirmed the ban on the use of federal funds for abortion unless the life of the mother is endangered.

These measures also failed:

-The Second Concurrent Resolution on the budget, which would have set binding ceilings on total spending by the federal government for fiscal year 1980. The budget resolution called for $543.7 billion in outlays, projected a $29.2 billion deficit for the fiscal year and a total public debt of $883.5 billion. It would have increased spending in five categories, including energy, income security, national defense, interest and general purpose fiscal assistance.

-An effort to raise the "permanent" debt ceiling from $430 billion to $500 billion. The national debt is amassed through the cumulative effect of federal spending which exceeds revenues, and I have long supported decreases which, in turn, could help slow down inflation.

-The conference report to implement the Panama Canal treaties. The bill carried financial arrangements for the U.S. to turn over the Canal to the Panamanian government. The conference report, a compromise between the House and Senate, was adopted by the Senate only a few hours before it was defeated by the House.

A lot of the hectic activity can be attributed to a lack of leadership in Congress and uncertainty among individuals involved in the process.

Still, for the moment at least, the Congress has turned conservative with your money.

County Seniors, AARP meet

The Hancock county Chapter No. 1114 of the American Association of Retired Persons met at the Civic Center on Coleman Ave. in Waveland recently with President Mrs. Esther Oschmann presiding. After the opening prayer and the pledge to the flag, Mr. Reggie Ross, legislative chairman spoke on the importance of the Medicare & Health Insurance for the elderly and other important topics of interest to the elderly. Mr. Paul Loup, Assistant State Director for South Mississippi, told about the tax-aided program sponsored by members of AARP. He remarked that the program has been very successful in Hancock County and plans are being made for the future.

Mrs. Gullie Loup, immediate past president, reported that 175 paid members and 100 unaffiliated persons are now members of the group. She also reported that the group has been very successful in Hancock County and plans are being made for the future.

The group will aid these persons in overcoming and coping with shock and grief and in regaining control of their lives. Meetings will be held each Monday at the center at 5:00 P.M. which began Aug. 6th.

Sessions usually last an hour. Leaders are: Mr. Bob Entekin, coordinator of elderly services; Mrs. Lavonne Powers, formerly a psychiatric nurse; and Mrs. Mary Ann Powers, formerly a psychiatric nurse. Mrs. Powers is also a member of the group.

A message from Gil

I can remember one time in Columbia telling my mother I would fix a broken window in the house. A couple of days later I told her again I'd fix it. And a week later I said, "I'm gonna fix it."

You know, those words never did fix that window. My backside got motivated, got my mouth shut and got that window fixed.

All summer long William Winter has been talking and talking about cleaning out the corruption of the Cliff Finch administration.

Last week, I challenged Winter to tell Finch to resign and throw out that corruption right now. "Take some action, William."

William Winter didn't call for Finch to resign. He talked about corruption in the Finch administration and how he was going to cure it after he gets elected.

My mother cured me of just talking about getting something fixed. William Winter still has a lesson to learn.

This time...

Modern appliances eliminate multitude of chores

When I push a button and on comes a brilliant light I often think back to my childhood when, to have a light, it was necessary to hunt a match, and a kerosene lamp filled with kerosene, remove the lamp chimney, strike the match, light the lamp wick, and then replace the chimney.

The resulting light after all the manipulation was a very dim light - not in any way comparable to the brilliant light from the electric lamp of today.

In winter there was another source of light, from the open fire in the fireplace.

I think I am most fortunate to have lived in my time - from 1890 on up to now.

I have seen the truly great changes from the old time pioneer ways to the modern ways of today.

I have seen more progress in my lifetime than took place in a thousand years before 1890.

No other people in all the history of the world has seen such changes as has my generation.

The discovery and the ever increasing use of electricity have resulted in the greater part of the so much better conditions under which we live today compared to the old ways.

Back in the old days when night came, it stayed dark all night, except for maybe one dim light in the home in the early part of the night.

I remember when I was a boy, my mother kept a kerosene lamp and a box of matches handy for use if needed during the night.

Before going to sleep she would take this lamp and go around over the house to see that all the children were in bed and that everything was in order.

Where it is now common practice to hold church meetings at night, I don't remember ever attending a religious meeting at night while I was growing up.

The only times I remember attending any function at night was on the occasion of school commencements, which were held at night in the spring of the year. People travelled in wagons, buggies or carts with no light, making it difficult to travel in darkness.

Then too the roads were bad back in those days and dangerous to travel at night.

There was no way of adequately lighting homes or churches or schools anything like what is considered adequate today.

Generally speaking, people went to bed when darkness came or soon thereafter and got up in the morning at daybreak or a little before.

In the old days, especially out in the country, where no ice was delivered, there was no refrigeration. I remember when in hot weather, foods cooked for the noon meal would often sour or spoil in the hot dining room by supper time.

Today with modern refrigeration due almost wholly to the development of electric refrigerators, food is much more easily kept.

My mother used to let the milk down into a dug well and let the container hang there in the cool water until ready to use.

Freezing food anytime except in cold weather was unheard of when I was growing up.

Fresh meat had to be cooked within a short time to be edible. All butchering except for immediate use was done in winter time. No stores carried in stock fresh meats like the modern stores do now.

Not only was there no electricity back when I grew up, there also were no battery operated lights of any kind so far as ever knew.

Old time kerosene lanterns were used, but more generally used for lights at night while hunting were torches made from heart pine splinters.

When we went possum hunting or went about at night when light was needed, we would cut an ample supply of long pine splinters and fasten about 3 or 4 maybe more together and light one end of it to form a torch for a light - a much better light than the old time kerosene lantern gave.

When I grew up there were none of the modern appliances in common use today.

The electric iron was one of the first electric appliances to come into general use. Before that the old time sad irons were used by all women to do their ironing.

When I first went into business in 1919 and for years thereafter, we sold many of the old time sad irons. They came in various weights, but the ones carried in stock in stores, were 5 lb., 6 lb., 7 lb. and a few larger weights.

These old time irons were heated in the fireplace kind on top of the cook stoves.

Today these old irons that were used by everyone just a short time ago are obsolete and are collector's items.

When I can first remember, women did all their clothes washing by hand. There was a regular washday once a week, most often on Monday if the weather was good.

The wood would be collected to build the fire around the old time cast iron wash pot.

On wash day, many buckets of water would be drawn by hand from the well to fill the wash pot and the wash tub.

A fire would be built around the wash pot to bring the water to a boil. The clothes would be soaped and put into the boiling water.

Really dirty clothes would be put on the battling block and the battling stick used to beat them to get the dirt out.

They would then be rubbed on the wash board then be put in the first tub to be rinsed, and then in the second tub; then be wrung out by hand and hung on the clothes lines.

All this, the hardest kind of manual labor, usually was done by the women just a short time ago.

Now with electricity available just about every woman has an electric washer - most of them an automatic washer - and an electric clothes dryer to do all this hard work automatically.

The use of electricity has done much to free women of the hard work they used to do, and has made the work of men much easier, while multiplying their ability to get much more done with much less labor.

Electricity today saves a woman up to the equivalent of 50 days work a year in washing the dishes, drying them and then storing until ready to be used again, and it washes the dishes much cleaner in water hotter than hands can stand.

A woman turns a switch and is instantly ready to cook to day. Back when I was a boy the stove wood had to be cut and split, hauled to a location close to the house.

When getting ready to cook, instead of pushing a button, the wood had to be brought in, kindling prepared, a fire started in the stove and then wait probably 30 minutes for the stove to be hot enough to cook food.

The stove had to be constantly watched and more wood had to be added as needed. After the cooking was done, the stove had to be cleaned up, the ashes removed and carried out so the stove would be ready to cook with again.

State nurses association slates Oct. hearings

The Mississippi Nurses' Association will sponsor ten open hearings during the month of October throughout Mississippi to discuss what the effects will be if there is a change in the current educational preparation and licensure requirements for nurses.

The American Nurses' Association has taken the position that there should be two levels of education which prepare a nurse. These should be the Baccalaureate, which is considered to be a professional nurse and an Associate Degree (A.D.N.) which would be a technical nurse.

The current system allows for three types of preparation, A.D.N., Diploma and Baccalaureate and does not distinguish between professional or technical levels.

The Mississippi Nurses' Association is seeking to gain input from local communities concerning ANA's position.

To date the Mississippi Nurses' Association has taken no position on this issue.

In March, 1980, at the Special Meeting of the MNA House of Delegates will review data collected by the MNA Task Force on Entry Levels into Practice. The MNA Task Force has been studying this issue for eighteen months. Data has been accumulated from many resources to aid the Delegates in addressing this controversial issue. This group's responsibility is to assimilate facts for clarification of this issue.

Dates and places for the hearings are as follows: October 2, Tupelo Public Library, Tupelo; October 3, Tallahassee Valley Electric Company, Batesville; October 9, MP & L Building, Greenville; October 10, City Court Room, Greenwood; October 11, Security State Bank, Starkville; October 16, East Miss. Electric Power Association, Meridian; October 18, R & D Center Auditorium, Jackson; October 23, Denman Auditorium, McComb; October 24, Thomas Hall, William Carey College, Hattiesburg; October 25, Sheraton, Hwy. 49 North, Gulfport.

Witnesses for the hearings will be representatives from the Deans & Directors Council of the State Boards of Institutions of Higher Learning, Mississippi Hospital Association, Mississippi State Medical Association, the LPN Association, the State Board of Health, the Health Systems Agency and other groups. Anyone may attend the hearings. The hearings will begin at 7:00 p.m. and end at 10:00 p.m.

He said the purpose of this "new Chautauqua" will be "to bring together the academic, business and political communities; all of whom share an interest in and concern for the quality of life in small towns, and to create the same kind of stimulating and enjoyable atmosphere."

Prior to the event, students and faculty of the architecture school will examine various design issues relating to small towns, among them, problems and solutions for municipalities affected by the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway project. The results of the examinations will be presented at the Oct. 3 dedication program.

In addition to the campus events, McMinn said the Chautauqua will include an Oct. 5 "circuit ride" through Starkville, West Point and Columbus to give participants "a first-hand look at small town problems and to make local citizens aware of some of the resources and expertise available to them."

The tour, to depart campus at 1 p.m., will make stops at each of the municipalities for meetings with local officials.

The tour-and the Chautauqua itself-will conclude with a "Small Town Celebration" on the Mississippi University for Women campus in Columbus, beginning at 7 p.m.

Additional registration information and a complete schedule of events may be obtained by contacting Michael Fazio, professor of architecture, Drawer A9, Mississippi State, Miss. 39762, telephone 325-5372.

Dean of Architecture William G. McMinn said the idea for such a unique event was inspired by the New York-based Chautauqua Movement of the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

"The movement represented a broad system of popular, adult education and even entertainment," McMinn said, adding, "In short, it sought to make learning an enjoyable, gregarious activity."

Architectural presentations, panel discussions and workshops, and dedication of the recently established Center for Small Town Research and Design will mark the first annual "Chautauqua in Mississippi" Oct. 3-5 at Mississippi State University.

The Chautauqua is being hosted by the MSU School of Architecture, with support from the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities. Registration will be held from 1-5 p.m. Oct. 3 in the architecture school's offices.

Induction ceremonies for the research and design center, the school's extension branch, will follow at 7:30 p.m. in the Cooperative Extension Auditorium.

Among speakers at the three-day event will be: Richard J. Kennedy, deputy director of the Division of Small Cities, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (7 p.m. Oct. 5); Gerald Allen, an editor of Architectural Record magazine (11:45 a.m., Oct. 4); and John Reps of Cornell University, whose book, "The Making of Urban America," established the field of American town planning history (8:30 p.m., Oct. 4).

Police marksmanship event begins Monday

The "most well-known shooting event of the year" gets underway October 1st at the Mississippi law enforcement officers' training Academy when 960 law enforcement officers from throughout the United States and Canada compete in the National Police Revolver Championship Matches.

The 18th Annual National Rifle Association-sponsored event starts at 8:00 a.m. on Monday with a welcoming ceremony, and ends at approximately 2:00 p.m. on Thursday, October 4th with the awards ceremony.

During the 1877 matches, the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol's four-man pistol team took the National Four-Man Team title with a score of 2383 of a possible 2400, but it was their ability to hit the x-ring, a smaller circle within the bull's-eye, used to break ties, that enabled them to capture their first big team championship.

They placed 15th of their 240 shots into the critical little circle.

The California Sheriff's Office also fired a score of 2383 points, but only 150 of their shots found the x-ring, and they had to settle for second place.

In last year's matches, Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol Officer Jim O'Connell of Pearl took the National Champion title away from Alabama State Trooper Jim Collins, who was the national winner for two consecutive years.

This year's competition promises to be the best in the 11-years that the Mississippi Department of Public Safety has hosted the event.

George Hendrick, Chief Range Officer of the Academy, says that there will be 16 full relays during the four-day matches, with 80 shooters competing on each relay.

Each class of competitors, Master, Expert, Sharpshooter, and Marksman will be divided into five categories of Federal, State, County and Municipal, which will include all individuals and teams whose salaries are paid by a government agency.

The fifth category is that of Industrial, and will include all individuals and teams employed as regularly organized railway and industrial police departments, bank guards and armored truck express company guards.

The public is cordially invited to attend and see competition among the most professional gun users from within the United States and Canada. The Mississippi law Enforcement Officers' Training Academy is located one mile south of Mississippi

State Hospital at Whitfield on Highway 468 in Rankin County.

Representing the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol will be Officers Ken Dunlap of Clinton; Gary Hughes of Tupelo; Bill McKinney of Clinton; Joe E. McFerrin of Mantachie; Mitchell McNeese of Mantachie; Jim O'Connell of Pearl; Oscar Pruitt of Baldwin; Bobby Reed of Walls; Lee Shelbourn of Hattiesburg; Danny Tackett of Gulfport;

Brief

UM PROFESSORS—A standard reference for hospital pharmacists—the first of its kind—which will also serve as a comprehensive textbook for students is being published this month by a Baltimore, Md. firm. The new book, "Handbook of Institutional Pharmacy Practice," includes contributions from more than 70 experts in the field of hospital pharmacy. Editors are Dr. Mickey C. Smith, chairman and professor of health care administration, and Dr. Thomas R. Brown, associate professor of clinical pharmacy and hospital pharmacy, both of the Ole Miss School of Pharmacy.

The Bay High Tigers, still relishing their underdog victory over rival Hancock North Central, faces a tough Pass Christian Pirate team tomorrow at Pirate Stadium.

Head Coach James "Snuffy" Smith has his players to the point where they believe they can win any game, and seemingly do so.

Smith said his squad is going into this game, as all games this year, as the underdog, but added his players are fired up for the match against the team across the bridge.

"I know we will give a 100 percent effort again," Smith said Tuesday.

"Pass Christian has been beaten by two fine teams, and the Pirates were not underdogs in those games," he continued.

"I feel in order to be successful, we must contain Gene Lang. If we do that, we

The Pass Christian Pirates will attempt to stop the highly motivated momentum of the Bay High Tigers Friday night as the undefeated team from over the bridge travels to Pirate Stadium at 7:30 p.m.

Pirate Head Coach Bob Lumpkin is working his team toward eliminating mistakes, which probably cost the Pass squad two games this season, one against Vancleave and last week's loss against d'Iberville.

"We are working to eliminate mistakes, mostly our fault," the second year skipper said Monday.

"The mistakes are coming from both the defense and offense. We made one bad mistake against d'Iberville, and gave them a touchdown," Lumpkin explained.

"In the second half (of the d'Iberville game) we fumbled on our 20 yard line, giving them momentum right off," he added.

Virginia Vegas 'of Bay St. Louis recovered from an upsetting defeat in the first round of her debut college tennis match to take the consolation title during the Jackson City Open Tennis Tournament this week.

Vegas is attending her first year at Millsaps College, and was defeated by Paige Dykes of Mississippi College in her initial set, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4.

She came back in consolation play and won three straight matches to claim the consolation crown.

Vegas recovered from the initial loss and defeated Liz Liema of Mississippi College, downing her by scores of 6-1, 6-

1. She then defeated Julie Catledge 7-5, 6-4 in the second set, and swept a set against Lori Thomas of Jackson State in the final match.

Anne Johnson of Bay St. Louis, also attending Millsaps, was defeated in her first set by Lori Thomas, who swept the match 6-2, 7-5.

Top seeded Renee Noblin of Old Miss then defeated Johnson in the consolation matches, 6-1, 6-1.

"I am very pleased with what the girls did here," Millsaps Athletic Director and Tennis Coach Jim Montgomery said Monday.

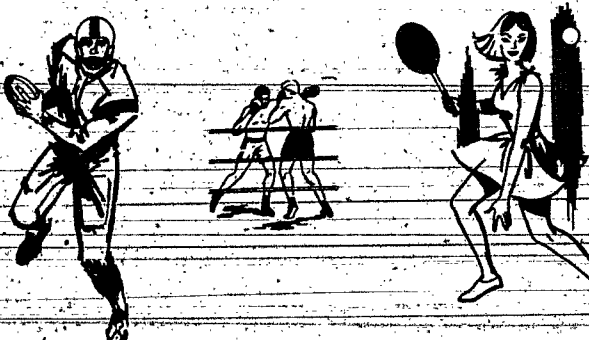

"They gave 100 percent effort out here," he continued.

"Ginny (Vegas) handled her college debut pretty well," he added.

Hancock North Central, still replacing feathers plucked after last week's loss to the Bay High Tigers, face a tough Vancleave squad Saturday afternoon in an attempt to redeem themselves.

The task of opposing the Bulldogs will be more difficult by the loss of HNC star running back Willy Santiago, who will reportedly be sitting on the bench with a slightly separated shoulder.

Head Coach Irvin Favre said Monday he may change occasionally from the standard wishbone offense to a power I or other variation against the Vancleave squad.

"We will have to play real good football, but I do not plan any drastic moves," Favre said Monday.

"We may run a little open on the offense in an attempt to move out on Vancleave," he continued.

"We may run a power formation, and also may vary to an 'I' formation during the game," he added.

"My biggest problem is that I do not have enough backs," Favre lamented.

Area boxer wins third

By RICH ADAMS

Jerry Carson of Waveland, a 110-pound 15-year-old, defeated two opponents in the ring last weekend to extend his string of victories to an undefeated three.

Carson is a member of the recently formed Bay-Kill-Waveland Boxing Club which meets daily in the Disabled American Veteran's building on Main Street in Bay St. Louis.

Carson defeated Ed Bennett of the Terrytown Boxing Club Saturday at the International Plaza in Biloxi, Head Boxing Coach John Whisenhunt reported.

The win came in the second two-minute round of the bout, the coach said.

Sunday Carson defeated Jimmy Moran of the Biloxi Boxing Club to win his third bout in as many attempts.

"Carson is a well disciplined boxer, one of the new breed emerging from Hancock County," Whisenhunt said Monday.

"He trains well, fights well, and does many good things expected from a pugilist," the coach added.

Henry Malley, a middleweight from d e l i s e , 1 st his first match of the season in a split decision against Ron Percy, an Airman First Class from the Biloxi Boxing Club.

Malley lasted all three of the two-minute rounds as he plugged away in the ring.

"Percy had experience boxing in California with the Air Force," Whisenhunt said.

"Percy weighs 185-pounds and is a 24-year-old. Malley gave up 23 pounds and two inches in height, as well as a four-year age difference in the split decision," the coach added.

"We could not get any other match closer to his weight class," Whisenhunt explained.

Also, in close matches ending in split decisions were Jay Breland, 140-pounds; Kevin Goodish, 125-pounds; and Todd Rooks, 95-pounds.

Nicky Slade, a 184-pounder, and Joe Lewis Goodman, weighing in at 150-pounds, coached the corner due to lack of opponents, Whisenhunt said.

"We are a young club, but a determined one," Whisenhunt said.

"We are going against clubs in Mississippi which have been established for years, and now we feel our club has enough strength and experience to go to Louisiana, which we will do this weekend," he added.

"Our boys fought good matches, and as far as them were very close decisions," Whisenhunt continued.

Carson has a record of 3-0 and is expected to be a contender for the state title in the 110-pound class.

St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws

By RICH ADAMS

The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws, undefeated after two games in the young gridiron season, face perhaps the toughest and largest team they will oppose all year as they meet Slidell High School at SSC Stadium Friday night.

Slidell, with a record of 3-0 and wins over such teams as Mandeville, Covington, and Salmen, is ranked Number Nine in Louisiana, according to SSC Head Coach Barry Jones.

"It is a big, undefeated team which is ranked No. nine in AAAA competition in the state," Jones said Tuesday.

"Slidell is the largest team we have faced all year, and is probably the biggest team we will ever face," he continued.

"They have good size, and pretty all the players are experienced," Jones added.

The Rock-A-Chaw players said the Slidell team averages 230 pounds, and has a tough defense, which does not give away any touchdowns.

Jones said he will have to run a social-oriented offense against the monster team of Slidell, because the successful Rock ground game will probably be stifled by the defense.

"We will have to run a social-oriented offense, and we will have to put the ball in the air," Jones said.

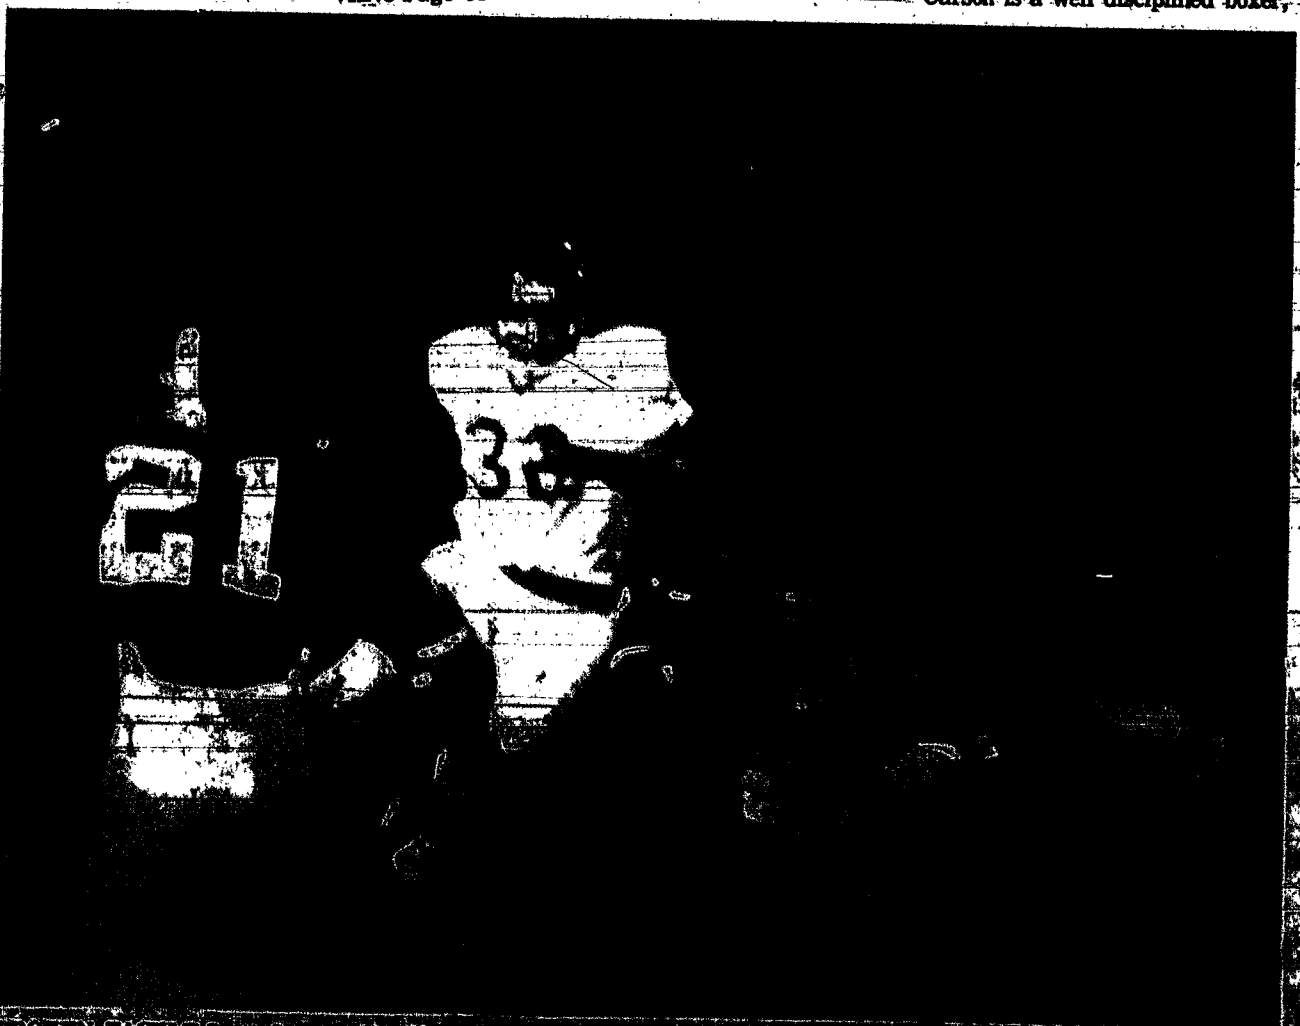

"We will have to put the ball in the air, and we will have to put the ball in the air, and we will have to put the ball in the air," Jones said.

"We will have to put the ball in the air, and we will have to put the ball in the air, and we will have to put the ball in the air," Jones said.

"We will have to put the ball in the air, and we will have to put the ball in the air, and we will have to put the ball in the air," Jones said.

"We will have to put the ball in the air, and we will have to put the ball in the air, and we will have to put the ball in the air," Jones said.

"We will have to put the ball in the air, and we will have to put the ball in the air, and we will have to put the ball in the air," Jones said.

But Lumpkin said the reason his team is making the mistakes is not because of lack of desire to win or lack of determination, but rather because he has a young, inexperienced squad.

"We are young and inexperienced. There is definitely no lack of effort. Those kids go out there on the field with a lot of determination," Lumpkin said. Unlike last year's Pickle Bowl-bound Pirates, Lumpkin will not shuffle his lineup in an attempt to strengthen the defense.

"We will stick to what we do now, with no drastic changes scheduled," Lumpkin said.

"We just have to work and eliminate our mistakes," he continued.

"Bay High is the type of team this year which will capitalize upon mistakes," he added.

"Coach Smith has done a fine job with the Bay High team. They are coming along good and are a fine ballclub," Lumpkin said.

Good news for the Pirates is that Pass' Fullback John Pat Swannier, recovering from a severely bruised thigh, will "be back at full speed" for the Bay High contest.

"We have no injuries now. We will be at full strength," Lumpkin said Monday. The game will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Pirate Stadium.

One of the oddest forms of survival in nature occurs with an obscure fish found only in limited areas of Australia, Africa and South America.

The lungfish, a true fish in form and function, can live during extreme drought by changing its method of oxygen intake from respiration through gills to breathing with a lung.

Lungfish aren't the only fish that can adapt to drought, according to Mercury outdoors' outdoor recreation department.

Some species closer to home which have similar traits are the American eel and many kinds of catfish.

In Texas, catfish have been known to live buried in the mud of dry lakes for several months. The ability to live in severe climatic conditions is a developed trait among many different kinds of aquatic animals.

Frogs north of our southern states must hibernate each winter under cold water and ice.

buried in mud so that they don't become too cold and freeze.

Fortunately, a frog can slow its metabolic rate—the rate at which it breathes, its heart beats and its body functions operate—to only one-tenth its normal rate during warm weather.

In this manner, frogs are able to survive extreme cold.

Land snails live a precarious existence during dry or cold weather.

Snails must have moisture in order to live.

In a drought, they withdraw into their shell, seal off the openings and wait for moisture.

Surprisingly, they can live for years this way, with no known source of food or air.

will win the game," Smith said. The Tiger skipper said some of his players are suffering minor injuries, but does not believe they will develop into any major setbacks.

"We never know how long these injuries and bruises can hold on. We are trying to rest those who are injured to eliminate complications during gametime," he explained.

In this, the first conference game for the Tigers, Smith explained is pondering whether Pass Christian's two defeats so far this year will effect their playing skills. "It may work to our advantage, or on the other hand it may motivate them to win in order to redeem themselves," Smith said.

"Possibly, they may be more up for this game than any game all season," he added.

Smith said he will concentrate on containing Lang, but will also make note of the other running backs such as John Pat Swannier, who can break for long yardage if given the chance.

He said he will also work to eliminate mistakes, such as the 10 fumbles in the first two games of the season, five of which resulted in turnovers.

"I feel we can move the ball, and are capable of scoring against the Pirates," Smith said.

"But if we give Pass Christian the opportunity to score on our mistakes, they will capitalize on the chance," he added.

Smith was grateful for the spectators who filled the visitor stands at HNC and spilled over to surround the field outside the fence.

"Hopefully, we will see that kind of fan support Friday," he said.

The game begins at 7:30 p.m. at Pirate Stadium.

In the past two games.

"That is the key to winning," Jones said. Slidell Head Coach Jeff Panks said Tuesday he is not taking the Rocks lightly, mainly due to the fine running abilities of Keith Pfister and Scott Sener in the SSC backfield.

"Our main concern is Pfister. He is quick, and if he gets past the outside line of scrimmage, he can go a long way," Panks said.

"St. Stanislaus has a fine balanced attack, and we will have to spread our defense out to win. We will have to play real good defense against the Rocks," Panks added. The Slidell headman said his biggest asset is that he has numerous returning seniors, and all have some two to three years playing experience.

The game begins at 7:30 p.m. at Rock-A-Chow stadium Friday night.

SIDELINE SYNOPSIS

By Rich Adams
Sports Editor

While the Bay High Tigers enjoyed Hawk for dinner Friday night, yours truly ate crow all week long for not choosing the Bay eleven over HNC.

This is only my second year in Hancock County, and I am still thinking the 'old' Tigers, the team which went 1-9 last year.

But Friday night made me a believer in believing. Head Coach James 'Snuffy' Smith has his gridiron forces so convinced that they can win that they do, despite the caliber of team they go against.

Bay High's Quarterback Chuck Benigno executes the ball well, and the whole team puts out a fine effort to win. The Tigers face tough opposition against the Pass Christian Pirates this week, and normally I would go with the Pass eleven in such a situation.

But Snuffy's 'confidenceman' has the Tigers so convinced they can win against any opposition, I will have to predict the thus far uninjured Tigers will contain lightning-fast Gene Lang and John Pat Swannier and pull yet another 'underdog-victory'.

Hancock North Central is in dire need of a running back. Veteran halfback Willy Santiago is out for the game against Vancleave this week, and the lack of depth in the Hawk line-up is not ready for a tough team like the Bulldogs. Granted, the Hawks have an excellent backfield in Lloyd Henry and Larry Peterson, along with scrambling quarterback Bobby Devaughn, but the inability to move the ball against Bay High without Santiago was obvious last week.

Unless the Hawk's change from the wishbone offense to other power formations completely confuses the Bulldog defense, I predict the Hawks will be defeated by a small margin against the Vancleave eleven.

St. Stanislaus is in for a rude awakening to reality after two wins in the early season as they go up against ninth ranked in Louisiana Slidell High School.

Slidell reportedly has a front defensive line averaging 230 some pounds, and has a team full of experienced seniors.

Not taking away from the Rock-A-Chaws fine squad this year, probably one of the best in a few years, but I believe the Rocks will not be able to contain the quick, experienced Slidell team in their match Friday night.

All games this week will be played on Friday at 7:30 p.m. with the exception of the HNC game, which will be Saturday at 2:30 p.m. due to lighting problems at Vancleave High.

opener, and Favre is hoping the Hawks have not lost their will to win.

"We might have lost our momentum in the Bay game. We had the ball in scoring position so many times and did not capitalize on the chance, we may have lost our belief that we could score," Favre admitted.

"Sometimes that can be demoralizing," he added.

Favre said he may spread his defense out to cut down on the outside sweep.

"We play good defense. Our kids believe in the defense," the head coach said.

"One big thing is that the kids do not believe in the offense. We are inconsistent. We rushed for 300 yards against Forrest County, and only 100 against Bay High," he explained.

"The big play against us is beating us. But we do play better defense this year," he added.

Vancleave Head Coach Alton Waltman said Tuesday he has exactly the same team which defeated Pass Christian playing Friday, and admitted he has no great strength anywhere in his line-up.

"We really have no main strength. We have fair quickness in our running game, but no great amount of extraordinary speed," Waltman said.

Waltman's starting quarterback Adam Williams was in the hospital most of this week for treatment of an arm infection, but will be back in full strength against the Hawks.

"Hancock has a solid ball club. Their loss against Bay High can go either way...they can be demoralized or so fired up we cannot handle them," he said.

Waltman said he may have problems with the Hancock wishbone offense.

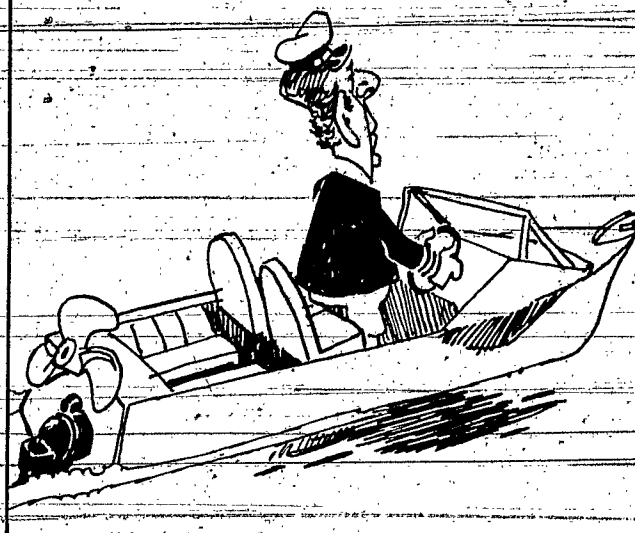

"We haven't face a wishbone offense since we played Hancock in the Pickle Bowl two years ago," he said.

The Hawks will travel to the Bulldog's home ground Saturday at 2:30 p.m., the game changed from Friday night due to lighting problems caused by Hurricane Frederic.

Boating Tips...

CARRY A SPARE PROP

Few motorists would venture out without a spare tire, yet boaters routinely go for a cruise without a spare propeller aboard. The MerCruiser stern drive boating authorities advise against this because a spare prop can be quite handy. Obviously, if you damage a prop you can change to your spare and keep on boating. Also, the spare prop can be useful in other ways: for example, some boaters carry a spare prop with a lower pitch which they switch to when they're pulling a pair of water skiers.

WAXING BOATS

Whether it's your car or boat, applying a coat of wax enhances the brilliance of the finish and protects it from sun and dirt.

But some boat owners are surprised to find that many manufacturers of fiberglass boats recommend another good waxing at the end of the season. The reason is sound. The 'gel coat' or pigmented resin on the outer surface of fiberglass is slightly porous.

This allows air and the sun's rays to get in and around microscopic bits of resin on the surface, which accelerates oxidation and consequent chalking of the surface.

Over the years, repeated chalking takes gel coat off bit-by-bit. So by shutting out the air and turning away the sun's rays, a good wax job can keep a boat looking fresh and new for many more seasons.
